Subject: SSHRC Bridging Knowledge Cultures Partnership Development Grant

Dear Friends,

We hope that you and your families and friends are doing well. We are moving forward now with the next steps in the Bridging Knowledge Cultures project. Thanks very much for the very good contributions made to the working paper. Please find two attachments. The first is an explanatory letter to each of you outlining the next steps in the project including expectations, timelines and financial matters. The second is our evolving analytic framework which we hope will help us move forward. There is one more practical set of guidelines that we will send you next week with more details about what you can look for in terms of both academic and community knowledge cultures. This is being drawn from the information that you have provided us in the regional working papers.

We have tried to strike a balance between giving you more clarity on what we looking for but want to respect the diversity of each of your hub locations, contexts, partnerships and visions. We want the stories of your hub's exploration of the differences between the ways that knowledge is understood with some of your academic partners and the ways that knowledge as change and agency happens within community, social movement or Indigenous partnerships.

We will schedule a zoom webinar mid-March to check in with everyone, but please reach out to either our Victoria or New Delhi team with questions. Walter Lepore is our Project Director

Cheers,

Budd and Rajesh
